Senegal

A warm and colorful country

From the lush Casamance delta to the Sahel savannahs, Senegal is home to rich natural and cultural diversity that makes it the perfect place to discover Africa: many national parks, picturesque markets, fine sand beaches, and captivating music.

Crossroads of civilizations, land of Wolof, Diola, Matingues, Serer and Toucouleurs, Senegal requires to take his time and stick to the rhythm of everyday life where music is omnipresent and palaver, a habit.

Landscapes bursting with color

Casamance

The Senegalese Camargue

Located at the very south of the country between Gambia and Guinea Bissau, the Casamance is a narrow silver of land renowned for the rugged beauty of its varied landscapes. The region's lush forests, coconut groves, mangrove-lined bolongs, savannah, and endless stretches of sandy beaches make it the tropical jewel of Senegal.

Where hospitality rules

Casamance is an oasis of calm from the relative bustle of "La Petite Cote", a slice of paradise where hospitality rules and the sense of community is strong.

The Diola people's unequalled taste for celebration sets the rhythm of the region. Casamance is thrilling with many rituals, celebrations, and colorful festivals involving bright costumes, some agile dancing and traditional Diola wrestling contests.

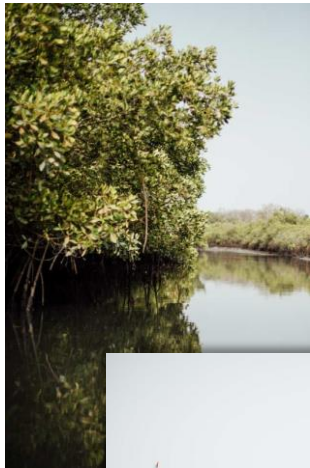

The Diola are eager to share their interesting culture, art, and traditions with those who travel to their villages. Hospitality and smiling faces are without a doubt the best part of a trip to Casamance.

Positioning

At the southern edge of Senegal, where a palm-fringed beach stretches for miles, the thatched roofs of the Cap Skirring Resort emerge from the blossoming bougainvillea.

Thanks to its common history with the region, the soul of Cap Skirring has become legendary. Its atmosphere is infused with the spirit of the surrounding villages, the sinewy mangrove-lined bolongs, the peaceful silence of the kapok forests, and, above all, the Diola people's hospitality and legendary sense of celebration.

Even though Cap Skirring has been completely redesigned, the Resort is keeping the spirit of the first adventurous GMs who first set foot on this little stretch of land. It will become a better base camp than ever to discover the wonders of Casamance and fell its authentic vibes.

Wake up to the gentle sounds of the ocean, set out on a traditional dugout to glide through the bolongs or explore the bush in a jeep, and then treat yourself to a few laps in the zen pool. Savor grilled fish on the terrace of the new Beach Lounge, which is tucked away in a filao tree forest. These precious moments elapses in the golden light of the setting sun as it slips into the waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

Cap Skirring will be loved by those with an adventurous spirit and a taste for authentic experiences and premium vacations.

Architecture & design

From the thatched roofs that shelter the guest rooms to the huts that line the beach, Cap Skirring Resort's architecture is a true homage to the one of the small villages in the surrounding Casamance region.

Once inside, numerous decorative elements include clever nods to local art and traditional craftsmanship. The hanging of 300 traditional masks from the ceiling above the main bar is without a doubt the star of the show.

The menu gives pride of place to traditional cuisine, with barbecue taking center stage. Grilled fish and meats are on offer and, for those who wish, dinner can be served in big family-style dishes to share, a testament to the Senegalese sense of togetherness.
